In the age of the Internet academic communication will not remain restricted to textbooks and research articles.

Information design means recreating what we do with information.

We have developed a course in which UiO students can learn information design in a flexible way, by following personal needs and interests.

To find out more and register for the course:
www.uio.no/studier/emner/matnat/ifi/INF3210/